A prize fight between Charles Stovey, colored, of New York, and Frank May, of Jersey City, two bantam weights, for a purse of $5.0, took place last nivbt in a well-known sporting resort in Jersey City. There were almost one hundred sports present and when they passed the hat around all they could collect was about 16 cents and a few huttons; they were all 'broke" and did not even pas any a mission. It was a very good fight while it lasted, but the colored hor was too much for May and put him out in the third round by a vicious blow on the jaw. May was badly punched, while Stovey escaped without a scratch.

The fight between Paddy McInnerney and Anthony McDonough, which has been put off so often for some reason or other, will in all probability take place in a few weeks. McInnerney said text night that he would start in training as soon as the backers of McDonogan
